

Christie starts her day excited and eager to start her new job in a new city. First, she has to surmount the challenge of finding the location of the office. One mistake leads her to the office of an old flame who is nothing like what he used to be. Later she also meets an old friend. Now Christie is torn between settling into a new job and rekindling a love that was never really allowed to blossom in the past.

When the embers of a quenched fire are fanned, naturally a flame is expected to arise and burn everything in its path. Whose flame will be rekindled and whose will be burned? Find out in this romantic short story that tells of a love that never dies.

Chigozie

Follow this link to read more

<http://femmetotale.org.ng/2013/11/20/to-fan-an-old-flame/>